

Awareness and Training

Omgeo ensures that associates involved in the business continuity process are properly trained and are aware of their responsibilities if a disruption occurs. Training at Omgeo occurs at different levels in the organization, according to associates' involvement in the business. Training is done on a regular basis to ensure that associates are up to date on all current procedures and information. Associates are notified of changes to business continuity plans and are retrained whenever their roles or known procedures have changed.